Description

This exquisite Irish Silver Potato Dish Ring, crafted in Dublin in 1943 by renowned silversmiths West & Son, is a stunning example of traditional Irish silver craftsmanship. The intricate pierced design features delicate scrollwork and floral motifs, showcasing the artistry and attention to detail that West & Son is celebrated for. Used historically to hold hot dishes, particularly potatoes, this piece serves as both a functional and decorative item. Made from solid sterling silver, it stands as a testament to Ireland's rich silver heritage and would make a remarkable addition to any collection or dining table.
